Louis D. Cook.

Louis D. Cook, principal of the Jireh Swift public school, is also superintendent of the North Congregational church Sunday school, which position he has held since October, 1914. His predecessor was Claude Smith, the boys' director at the Y. M. C. A. Before his superintendency Mr. Cook had been superintendent of the senior department of the Sunday school, and also was teacher of the boys' class in the senior department.

The school itself, which has an enrollment of 575, had an average attendance of 264 up to December last. This year the school has made a specialty of missionary Sunday, which takes place the last Sunday in the month. It contributes to Country Week and to the Shawmut sanatorium.

Beside the superintendent, the officers of the school are as follows:

Treasurer—E. A. Jennings.
Secretary—Jonathan Jones.
Superintendent of the Adult Department—Sarah Russles.
Superintendent of the Intermediate Department—Frederick C. Brown.
Superintendent of the Junior Department—Mrs. W. H. Chapin.
Superintendent Primary Department—Alice Lowther.
Superintendent Beginners' Department—Lucy Lewis.
Superintendent Cradle Roll—Mabel Lewis.
Superintendent Home Department—Louise Crocker.

E. A. WHEATON'S SUMMER HOME. Aug 16 1916

The family of Ernest A. Wheaton ends the summer and a part of the autumn at their cottage at Russells Mills, that they rightly designate as one of the beauty spots in that peasant region. The area of the location is about two acres in extent, near the town landing, and opposite an immense oak grove, some of the trees which are from one hundred to years of age. The view thence the valley of the Slocum river is a very pretty one, with uplands and water scenery on either side—a "Switzerland in America," in miniature.

The cottage has seven rooms and a large piazza. At the rear is an English garden effect, with a broad tile walk and vine-covered trellis. Farther at the back of the property is an immense ledge, a tremendous rock, from which a still wider view of the country is to be had. A flower and vegetable garden add to the immediate attraction of the place.

Jl. 28, '16 DR. M. H. LEONARD'S SUMMER HOUSE.

One of the coolest spots in the summer season in the Padanaram vicinity is that location owned by the Dr. M. Leonard family and Mrs. T. Frankl[illegible]n Gay, "Shore Acres," as it is known. Situated right between Nonquitt and Bay View, and near the open sea beaches, the Dr. Leonard cottage is [illegible] group of four, with excellent river and over the [illegible] been in the possession past 18 years, the cottage being on an open lot with a large surrounding acreage of open country.

The cottage has eight rooms, with a living room that runs the entire length of the building. There is a piazza on three sides, from which a view is to be had across the bay to Clarks point, towards Woods Hole and up Padanaram harbor. The view shows both the Leonard cottage (in the foreground) and the Gay cottage.

GEORGE A. KIRBY'S SUMMER HOME. July 29, 1916.

Twenty-five years ago, before Salters point was opened as a summer resort, George A. Kirby was the first of those who saw the opportunities of that neighborhood as a place in which to spend the warm months of the year. Accordingly, his present summer home was built on its pleasant location, on the attractive sea beach between Mishaum point and Plummers point, near Salters point road and Little River road. The lot is on a neck of land, at the back of which is a pretty pond called Teals pond, the beach in front being called Teals Pond beach. Hence is a very fine view of the open sea and all the adjacent coast country, the cottage being located between two very picturesque ledges, one of which has a fine grove of cedars. The cottage has five large rooms and a breezy piazza extending nearly all around it. The family goes to their summer home in June and remain until about the Thanksgiving season.

WHOPPING TURTLE 160 YEARS OLD THAT IS STILL ABLE TO GET AROUND

Jl. 15'16.

A land turtle strutted out of the potato patch on the Spooner farm, two miles north of Lunds corner, yesterday, and attracted the attention of Oliver G. Spooner, who was hoeing. Mr. Spooner has seen hundreds of such turtles, but there was something about this one that made him pick it up. Looking at it closely on the under shell, Mr. Spooner found the numerals "1757" at the top, and the letters "I. W." across the centre of the shell. The impressions were so distinct through constant wear that it is practically sure that they are bona fide. The turtle was brought to The Standard office to be photographed, and was then taken back to its favorite haunts.

About 40 years ago, Mr. Spooner's father, the late James L. Spooner, bought the farm from Simeon Weston. Mr. Weston had a brother Isaac. Although initials similar to his are on the shell, he could not have been the man who 159 years ago did the carving. It is believed that a member of the generation previous cut his initials into the shell.

ATTRACTIVE SUMMER CAMP AMONG PINES AT ASSAWAMPSETT

Aug 20-1916

One of the most attractive and convenient of the summer camps of Lake Assawampsett, is that of former Postmaster Frank C. Barrows, to which the family goes about the first of June, generally to remain throughout the month of October. The cottage, which has a pretty location in the midst of the pines and on a beach of its own, has eight rooms, pleasantly furnished, and piazza. The lot has a frontage of about 75 feet on the lake and the view across the lake is an unobstructed and a restful one. The place is conveniently situated on the Brockton car-line.

BIG EIGHT FOOT SHARK WASHED UP AT CUTTYHUNK.

Jl. 16 16.

Cuttyhunk, July 15.—Scores of persons, including the islanders and summer visitors, have flocked to see the remains of the eight-foot shark washed up on the beach late Thursday afternoon. Interest in sharks has been stimulated among the fishermen and others recently by the stories of the attacks upon bathers along the New Jersey coast.

The dead sea monster here was found half buried in the sand beach near the coast guard station. The islanders decided it must have come from the vicinity of Nomansland. No one seems to know whether or not it is of the man-eating species.

Aug. 18 1916

The joys of Westport in the summer season are those of the sojourner thereto just now, and among those who are sharing in the wholesome prospect and environs of the favored community by the sea is the family of John R. Barrett, of this city, who, from the first of June up to about the first of October spend the choice pleasantest season of the year at "The Lindens," their large, comfortable home at the Central Village. "The Lindens," so-called because the house is shaded by especially fine samples of that graceful tree, has its location on Westport avenue, within short distance of Westport river, Horseneck Beach, and all those adjacent beaches that are the resort of the health seeker and the tourist on pleasure bent. There are about six acres in this handsome property, which includes an orchard of apples, pears, etc., as well as gardens of flowers and vegetables. The house, which has 16 rooms, has recently been remodeled, and has an eight-foot veranda, nearly encompassing it.

Four hundred members of Local 243, Boot and Shoe Makers' union, attended a clambake at Fort Phoenix, at 2 00 o'clock, Saturday afternoon. Among the guests was Thomas O'Hare, international organizer of the Boot & Shoe Makers' union.

The union had a band of 22 pieces there, which made the beach ring with popular melodies. This band has a definite organization, and is in charge of the following officers:

President—Peter F. Mulkerne.
Vice President—F. E. Smith.
Secretary—J. E. Mahoney.
Treasurer—D. H. Tribou.
Leader—Mr. Tribou.

Assistant Agent Edward Howells was present. The bake was one of the largest attended and most successful ever held by the union.

WAR HEROES MUSTER.

VETERANS OF OLD THIRD HEAVY ARTILLERY HOLD REUNION.

Assemble in Post 1, G. A. R. Hall to Tune of Clattering Dishes at Feast Spread by Sunshine Club—Rolls Boast of 202 Living Members.

There was a mighty mustering today of gray-haired war heroes. From all over the New England states they came and the great state of New York, these brave old comrades of the Third Heavy Artillery association. It was their 34th reunion. They held it with a warm shaking of hands and glad hearts in Post 1 hall, G. A. R., with a dinner served in their usual tempting style by those famous cooks, the ladies of the Sunshine club.

Just before dinner, a business meeting was held. Dinner was served in the hall at 12 30 o'clock, and after dinner came speeches, delightful reminiscences and jokes on big events when the American world was held from falling apart by the thinning line of the boys in blue.

The officers of the Third Heavy Artillery association elected today are:

President—James Arrington of Salem.

Vice President—Walter Fisher.

Secretary and Treasurer—William W. O'Connell of Brookline.

The delightful entertainment which the Sunshine club gave in the afternoon for the benefit of the veterans was in charge of Mrs. Kate L. Palmer. Among the numbers were the following: Reading, Mrs. Nannie L. Simmons; reading, Mrs. Minnie Taber; recitation, Miss Minnie Sanford; duet, Mrs. Palmer and Mrs. Taber; reading, Mrs. Carrie Norton; singing of war songs by all.

Mrs. Mabel L. Little, president of the Sunshine club, was in charge of the club, and the work she did was as opposite to her name as east is from the west. For the 18 members of the Sunshine club made a great clattering of dishes in the G. A. R., kitchen, and hungry veterans cannot be blamed if they peeked inquisitively round the corner to sniff the fragrant odors that emanated therefrom, in anticipation of what was coming. Never did these ladies prepare a better feast. All the skill of all the years (and how any of them can count history back to Civil war times is more than one hunger-satisfied reporter can understand) was in the making of their dinner. Ask the heroes of the old Third.

Itw as a big day. The "boys" [illegible] to boast that 202 men still muste[illegible] their ranks, though the infirmiti[illegible] old age kept many from attendi[illegible] day. May they [illegible] another reunion

OPTICIAN 35 YEARS.

IRVING A. BROWN OBSERVES ANNIVERSARY.

At His North Sixth Street Store Was Established the First Lens Manufacturing Plant in This Section—Among First to Use Retinascope.

Irving A. Brown, optometrist and optician, of 18 North Sixth street, yesterday observed the 35th anniversary of his interesting experience in that business, and his friends are congratulating him on having attained that progressive milestone in business life.

In was on Aug. 7, 1881, that he began to work for the American Optical company, at Southbridge, Mass. After five years in their employ, he went to Boston with the firm of L. J. Mc Intyre. After working there for a year, he entered the employ of Andrew J. Lloyd, where he remained six years.

In April, 1883, Mr. Brown came to this city as manager of a local optical house, in which position he remained 12 years. Sept. 9, 1905, he opened an optical store on his own account at 206 Union street, but the increase of the business necessitated his removal from that location in July, 1913, to his present store, at 18 North Sixth street, which is claimed to be the largest optical store south of the city of Boston.

Mr. Brown has the honor of being one of the first men to make use of the retinascope, in this country, manufacturing his own instruments. He was the first person to use it in this city. In December of 1915, Mr. Brown, owing to continued increase of business at his Sixth street plant, installed a lens manufacturing outfit, and this also is the only place outside of Boston, in southern Massachusetts, where this sort of work is done, and here, Dec. 23, 1915, was manufactured the first lens made in this city.

During the time Mr. Brown has been in this city, he has examined the eyes of nearly as many people as there are residents of New Bedford, his business coming from this city and the surrounding towns.

From all over Massachusetts men, women and children of Scotch ancestry will travel to Roxbury on Labor Day to attend the field day of the Scottish clans. Many New Bedford people attend these gatherings in Caledonia Grove every year.

Last year, the Scottish clans, in their elaborate entertainment had twelve Highland pipers. This year, it is planned that 50 little girls shall dance the Highland dances in their kilties. The children shown in the Highland costume are cousins—Muriel MacDonald, daughter of Murdoch MacDonald, of 59 James street, and Donald MacDonald, son of Alexander MacDonald, of 82 Thomas street.

MISS ANNA T. JARVIS.

Miss Anna T. Jarvis, prominent in Seattle's younger social set, is one Red Cross rookiette who is a real believer in preparedness.

She took up the study of wireless and is making herself proficient in that work, not that she ever expects to have to earn her living at it, but merely, as she says, "in case circumstances might develop whereby I would be forced to earn my living. I would thus be proficient in a field which I would have but little if a competition with other women."

Miss Jarvis is the daughter of t late Captain D. S. Jarvis of this ci the skipper who earned an undyi reputation in the far north when headed the memorable Point Barr expedition to save the marooned a starving members of several whali ships frozen in by an unexpecte early freeze up at the northernm point in Alaska.

Harry G. Rounsvell is the superintendent of the Trinitarian Sunday school, having been appointed to that position in the fall of 1915. Previous to his superintendency of the school, Mr. Rounsvell was a teacher, and for a number of years he has been the clerk of the church. He succeeded J. Franklin Briggs, in his present position, Mr. Briggs being the treasurer of the church. Among the superintendents of the school have been the following: Edward A. Sherman, a teacher; the late William E. Sargent, principal of the High school; Judge Frank A. Milliken, a trustee of the church; Clifton W. Burtlett, treasurer of the Dartmouth mills and clerk of the church; the late Frederick A. Washburn, treasurer of the Institution for Savings.

The school was founded in 1831, at the time of the founding of the church, and it is said to be the oldest Trinitarian Sunday school in the state. The enrollment is 279, a net increase of 55 since last year. The average attendance is 165. The school closes the last Sunday in June, and reopens the second Sunday in September. There are five departments, namely, Senior, Intermediate, Junior, Kindergarten, and the Sargent Class of young men, R. W. Sherman, teacher. There are 39 teachers in the school. Miss Emma L. Gartland is superintendent of the kindergarten department.

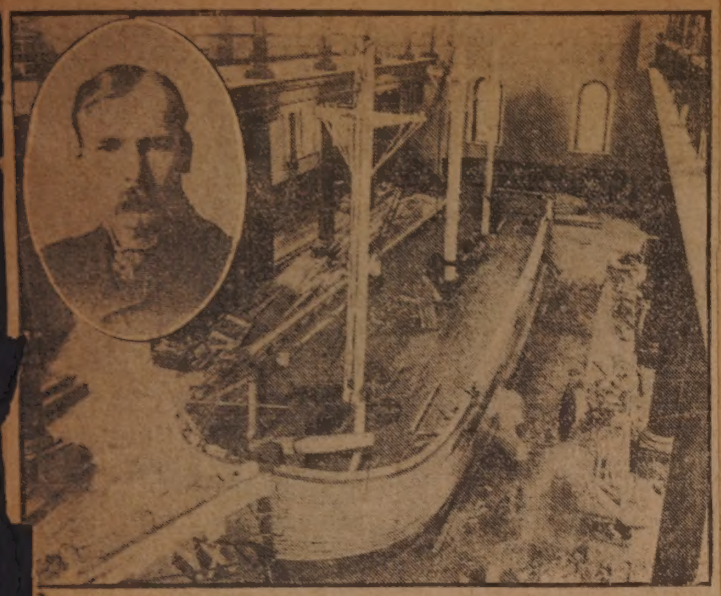
Fred Grenier, who although recently employed in Fall River, has a wide circle of acquaintances in New Bedford, will become a member of the local Talbot sales force at this time.

"THE SHIP THAT NEVER WILL SAIL"



Aug 27 76. THE AUTHOR AND THE LAGODA.

BY CLEMENT SWIFT.

They build a ship on the Bethel Hill,
And so commemorate
The deeds of the men of iron will
Who made this sea-port great.
A ship which will seem in every way
Like the ships that used to sail
To every sea in the whaling day
In search of the mighty whale.
I heard the sound of hammer and saw
I heard the 'swish' of the plane,
And the memory of the days that were
Came to my mind again.
Who would not enter, who would not ask
To learn of what avail,
What need of the seemingly fruitless task
Of a ship that never will sail!

So I entered the hall and wandered
Where saw, and hammer and plane
Good lumber seemingly squandered
As in good old times again.
And as I lingered I wondered
What the men, now laid so still,
Would say of a ship sea-sundered
That never her sails will fill.

And while I lingered I pondered still,
Thinking the thoughts that creep
Barren of logic, the head to fill
Waking, as well as in s.
While the hammers sounded . . wall to wall
Beating from keel to rail,
Building the ship in the spacious hall,
The ship that never will sail.

And the fancy seized me that pine and oak
Might in some way sentient be,
And shaped to a ship 'neath the hammer's stroke,
Might rightfully yearn for the sea;
Then how it would irk her languishing,
Shut from the wind and the rain;
To have for the hum when the taut ropes sing,
The flies dull buzz on the pane.

And the figurehead! were it on the prow,
How she would fret and crave
With chiseled scowl on her wooden brow,
The rythmic heave of the wave,
Never to taste the salt on her lips,
Never to peer far down
Into the brine as the forefoot dips,
But always that wooden frown.

Sparred, and canvassed and flag-bedecked,
Inspected, admired and praised;
But never floated or foam-beflecked,
And never the great whale 'raised.
Clamped like a dead hawk nailed to a door,
Shut from the ocean breeze,
While others 'claw off' a bleak lee shore
Crunching the ice strewn seas.

No green sea-mold will her copper stain,
No rust-stains rouge her paint,
No 'gurry streaks' where her scuppers drain,
And no bilge water taint
Rise from her hold, but rigidly
Will stand unbent her masts:
Her doom is never to know the sea,
Never to loose her 'fasts.'

Like child and namesake whose sire was great
But only like him in name,
Unable to equal or emulate
The deeds that brought him fame,
Though he cleverly bear the outward guise
He is yet fore doomed to fail:
So this "LAGODA" must be likewise
As the ship that never will sail.

SUMMER HOME OF SAMUEL DUDGEON.

About a mile from the terminus of the Padanaram car line, at beautiful Bay View, is the summer home of Samuel Dudgeon. The immediate surroundings are peaceful and rustic, and the location of the cottage is one that evinces good taste in the selection of a place at which to spend a few weeks in the summer for rest and recreation. There are large wild cherry trees in the vicinity of the cottage, and a wild flower garden has been kept up from year to year. There is a good view of the bay, as the place is at the mouth of the Apponganset river on Beach avenue.

The cottage, which stands upon a lot that is about 40 square rods in area, has nine rooms in all, with large living and dining rooms and kitchen and open fireplaces. On three sides are plazzas about eight feet in width. The family go to their Bay View cottage from the first of June to about the middle of September.

Among Mr. Dudgeon's neighbors in the Bay View colony are: A. G. Mason, treasurer of the Whitman mills; James Stetson, superintendent of the Gas works; J. Henry Herring, bank and mill director; Arthur Austin, Judge Frank Milliken, Richard E. Warner, president of the Household Manufacturing company, and Henry S. Hutchinson.

GEORGE R. CHERRY'S SUMMER COTTAGE.

Aug. 11, 1916.

Cherry is a name nearly akin to cheery, cheerful, and the like; and therefore it is not so hard to understand why George H. Cherry has named his summer home "Laffalot," the name with a laugh in it and a lot of that Look pleasant and be pleasant is the rule for family and visitors at the attractive summer cottage of Mr. Cherry at Westport, and it is not the fault of the host if the glad hand is not in evidence, and a joyful countenance as well.

"Laffalot" has a fine situation on the west side of the Westport river, between Hicks bridge and Westport point, about opposite Cadman's Neck, the old campmeeting grounds. It is about seven miles distant from Westport Factory. One might never suppose this cottage once performed duty as the old schoolhouse of the town, but eight years ago, Mr. Cherry purchased it, together with about seven acres of land and has transformed it into a smiling place in the wilderness. The place was planted with fruit trees, pears, plumbs, peaches, apples, as well as currants and gooseberries, etc. There is also a vegetable garden, where the family grow the vegetables they need throughout the season.

As for the house itself, it was removed from its former location to the grove of oaks and walnuts in which it now stands. The central room remains in the same dimensions as formerly. But all about the outside has been built a ten-foot piazza, a portion of it open, but for the most part, with built-in rooms, of which there are five, all convenient and cosy. The living-room is 30 by 27 feet in measurement, and has an open fireplace five by seven feet in dimensions, the pasture stone of which it is built running to the very top of the chimney.

Near at hand are the garage, wharf and boathouse, where a number of gasoline boats afford the pleasure of outing on the river during the summer. The flower gardens are an admirable feature of the place, and in its season, a rambler rose, about 40 feet in length is a wonderful sight. The family go to their summer home about the first of July and return with the cold weather.

OLD SPINNING WHEEL AND LOOM TO BE USED TO MAKE NOVEL FABRICS.

Sept. 24, 1916.

Here are the spinning wheel and the old wooden loom that Miss Mollie N. Gammons proposes to use in making fabrics that will be real achievements in novelty and attractiveness. Here, too, is Great Grandmother Nancy Eddy Howland, the thrifty housewife of Tiverton, R. I., who, many long years ago, had the old loom made especially for her, and on it wove countless yards of stout homespun clothes.

Nancy Eddy Howland.

Few subjects in the textile field have aroused more interest than the announcement of Miss Gammons, as made in The Standard this week, that she intends to make beautiful, artistic fabrics in her own home on Hathaway road, doing all the processes necessary to convert the raw wool into the finished goods, on the old fashioned spinning wheel and hand loom that her grandparents and great-grandparents used. There is a feeling of the romantic in taking the old hand and foot driven machines which have lain quiet so long and to make them whir and clatter as in the olden times.

Can Miss Gammons compete with the great modern mills with their up-to-the-minute appliances? Nobody expects that she can do so in any sense from the standpoint of quantity, but that is only one phase of production. There is the matter of quality, and it remains to be seen whether the artistic training which Miss Gammons has received in the Rhode Island School of Design, plus the mechanical ingenuity in designing that she is learning at the Textile school here, will not yield fabrics that will be strikingly rich in novel beauty and quaint charm.

An Appreciation by One Who Was Acquainted with Him.

To the Editor of The Standard:

A man of sterling worth was promoted into the larger life in the passing away of Ezra Holmes of New Bedford on Tuesday, Sept. 26. A native of Manomet, Plymouth, he was an honored and honorable representative of the well-known Holmeses of the Manomet district of Plymouth. The deceased was not only respected by all who knew him, but he was also held in great affection because of his lovable nature. He was a delightful man to meet and to get acquainted with. To use an oft-repeated expression, to know him was to love him. In Mr. Holmes's case the expression was strictly and literally true. He was truly loved by all who knew him, because of his pleasant disposition and of his even temperament. About him was an atmosphere of equanimity, tranquility and genuine peacefulness. No cross or ugly word was ever uttered by him, nor did he ever do a thing that would be unbecoming a Christian gentleman, or hurtful to anybody. Instinctively and essentially and invariably a gentleman, he was always pleasant-spoken, upright in motive, honest in thought, sincere in word and straightforward in action. Ezra Holmes was a dutiful son, an ideal husband, an affectionate father, a loving brother and a true friend. As a church member and a Sunday school worker, he was loyal and zealous and in all his faithful diligence, he was unpretentious and unostentatious. Strong-minded, gentle-mannered, pleasant-faced, pure-hearted, courageous-souled and good-dispositioned, he lived a long, useful life. The world is a little better because, in company with countless other faithful souls, he lived, loved and labored in that old world. For as Phillips Brooks has well said, "No man or woman of the humblest sort can really be strong, gentle, pure and good without somebody being helped and comforted by the very existence of that goodness." In that sense, not only heaven, but also this old world of ours is richer because of his existence, or because of his earthly life and of his entrance into the larger or the celestial existence.

"Shore Acres," summer home of L. . Nichols, is one of the most sightly f the summer breathing-places owned nywhere by New Bedford business men and it is a well-named and pleasant spot in South Dartmouth, just north of Nonquitt, with its four acres of rolling land bordering the bay. At he rear is the James T. Howland arm, and on either side are New Bedford friends and neighbors, these ncluding the homes of T. Franklin ay, Henry Leonard, Dr. Elmer Robins and others.

Here is a view such as one does ot have the privilege always of owning all to oneself in the vicinity of ne's summer cottage, the outlook is ne of fully 20 miles across the bay, rom the elevation of 25 feet above he water, the cottage being situated bout 300 feet from the edge of the water. There is a wharf at the shore, and a number of row boats are in evidence as forming a part of the joys of summer outing here.

The illustration gives a good idea of the house, which has eleven rooms and a foundation of stonework. There is a fine piazza on two sides of the house, 30 feet long and 12 feet wide on the east and the same on the south side. There is a commodious living room, 28 by 16 feet in measurement, which contains an extra large stone fireplace. The dining room is 16 feet square and the house has hot and cold water, bath rooms, electric lights, etc. In front of the cottage is a terrace, 700 feet in length, that was built by the abuttors.

The family of Mr. Nichols' goes to "Shore Acres" about June 15 and remains until about the middle of September.

WHERE NEW BEDFORD PEOPLE SPEND THEIR SUMMER VACATIONS

Sept. 28, 1916.

HOME OF DR. T. N. ROCHE AT POPE'S BEACH.

A man's home is usually ten times more enjoyable if he is able and willing and has the material at hand to build it himself. Dr. T. N. Roche thinks, and so thinks many another amateur builder of their own homes, whether they be of the summer or winter pattern. With but little help from any outside party, Dr. Roche has built his summer place, which he has named "Tom's Cot," and which is located to the right of the pavilion at Pope's Beach. He has in his possession a score or more of snapshots showing the progress he has made from the very laying of the foundation stones of the structure—and that is a building, too, that has been built upon solid rock.

"Tom's Cot" was built in 1908, and it has been added to from year to year, and its surroundings beautified and made attractive until today it will stand comparison with most of the cottages in the immediate vicinity. The house has eight rooms, and there is a viewy and concreted piazza in front. There is about an acre of land in the property, and to the rear is a fine tract of oak, birch and pine trees. This summer the doctor has raised a vegetable garden, and he says that his tomatoes are of good quality.

TEN YOUNG MEN OF THE AL[illegible] STREET M. E. CHURCH COMPRISE MISS ~~ALICE~~ Hattie ASHLEY'S NAUTILI CLASS

Aug. 1, '16.

The Nautili is a class of ten young men, from 16 to 19 years of age, in the Allen Street Methodist Episcopal Sunday school, taught by Miss Hattie Ashley. The class name was suggested by Oliver Wendell Holmes's poem, "The Chambered Nautilus," the last stanza of which is the class motto—

"Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul,
As the swift seasons roll!
Leave thy low-vaulted, past!
Let each new temple, nobler than the last,
Shut thee from heaven with a dome more vast,
Till thou at length art free,
Leaving thine outgrown shell by life's unresting sea!"

Business and social meetings have been held monthly. The results of the organization are: A strong feeling of brotherhood; interest in religion, the church and all its activities.

Since its organization, the class has become an increasingly helpful influence in the church and Sunday school; and they, in turn, are being led to know and to follow the Master Builder of all lives.

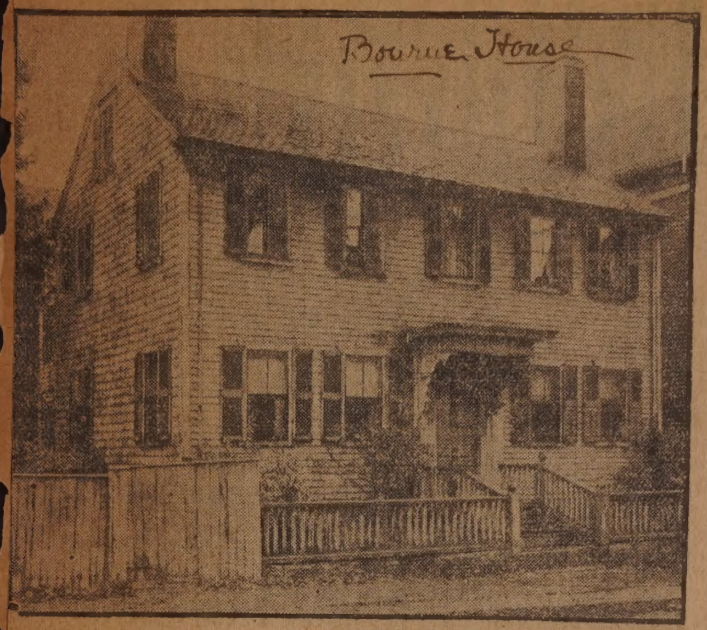
ALBERT BIGELOW PAINE BORN IN NEW BEDFORD JULY 10, 1861.

Oct. 22, 1916.



(The Birthplace of Albert Bigelow Paine, 83 School Street, New Bedford.)

A trifle cramped, by the crowding street,
Stands the quaint old house today—
Low-roofed and somewhat shabby
In its coat of tarnished gray—
A sort of cheery homeyness,
A touch of bygone grace,
Clings, like a tender memory,
Around the old home place.

Old fashioned shrubs
And battered fence,
A "Rose of Sharon" gay—
Pink tinted blooms beside the door
Where ragged grasses sway—
And gracefully a wide elm tree
Shelters the old house tenderly.

A little hint of mystery,
A dream of days of yore,
Come like a haunting memory
From an unforgotten shore.
And I catch the glow and beauty
Of a far off, fadeless June,
As I linger at the doorway
And wander from room to room—
And ever an old house holds for me
The touch of a bygone witchery.

And the thought that it is the birthplace
Of Albert Bigelow Paine
Lends charm and a dash of romance
To this old time domain.
And many happy memories
That time cannot efface,
And dreams that linger with the rest,
Surround this old home place.

JOHN P. SYLVIA, 85, DEAD AT HIS HOME.

Born at Fayal and Spent 65 Years of His Life in This City—Worked Many Years at the Twist Drill—Member of Monte Pio Club.

John Phillips Sylvia, 85, who was one of the oldest Portuguese residents of this city, is dead at his home, 249 Allen street. He had been ill for several years, although he had been able to be out. He was born in Fayal and came to this country when he was about 20 years of age, spending the remaining 65 years in New Bedford.

John Phillips Sylvia. Feb. 7, 1917

For about 10 years he was on board a lightship hailing from this port, which was commanded by Captain Hathaway. After leaving the sea he entered the employ of the Morse Twist Drill and Machine company. By this firm he was employed for about 17 years. He held several positions while employed by the company, but left their employ about 25 years ago.

He was a member of the Monte Pio Luso-American club, which he joined in 1889. He leaves a widow. The services are to be conducted from St. John's church at nine o'clock tomorrow morning, Rev. Fr. Christian [illegible] will officiate.

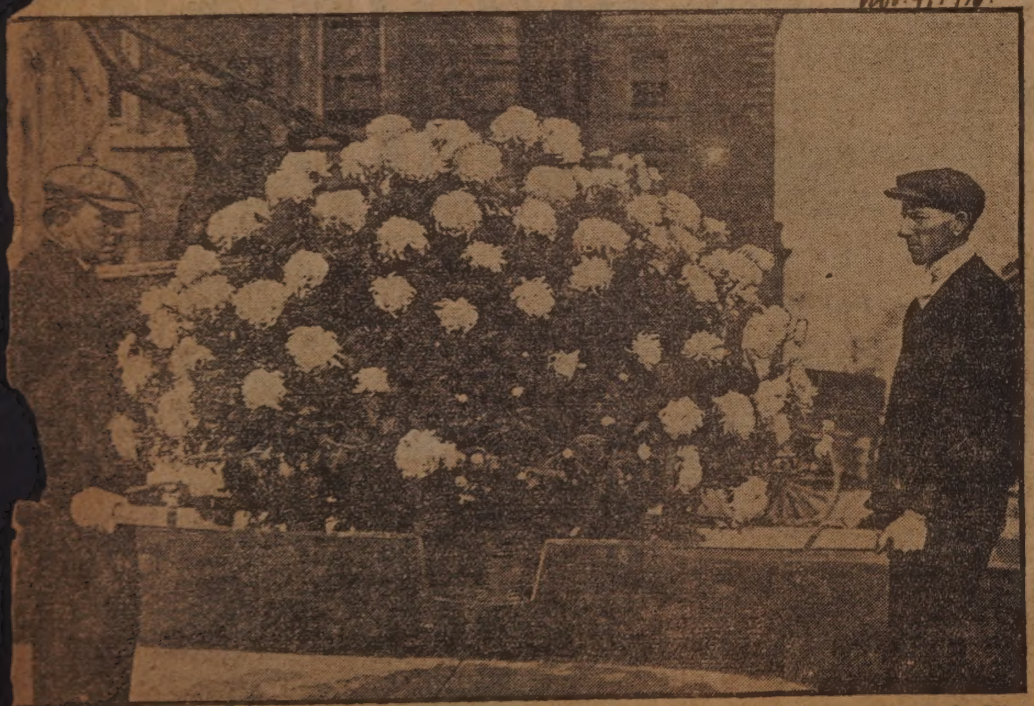
A WONDERFUL CHRYSANTHEMUM PLANT WHICH IS ON EXHIBITION AT PRESENT TIME AT LIBRARY

Nov. 9, 1916.



he accompanying photograph was ped by a Standard representative ious to its being placed on ex- tion in the Library building along n many others from the estate of en Stone of Marion. It is a speci- plant of the William Turner va- of chrysanthemums, and is as the Japanese incurve. Grown from a cutting of a previous plant, it has matured to its present full growth after 12 months of careful nurturing, and New Bedford is fortunate in being the first city in which it has been placed on exhibition. Sprung from the same plant as the one which has been shown with much success throughout the country, and which recently carried off the first honors at the Massachusetts Horticultural show in Boston, the owner considers the one on view at the Library to be quite the equal of the prize winner. It is of about the same size, and although it is not so profuse in the number of blooms, they are of a larger and fuller type. The many beautiful exhibits being shown will be viewed with interest and admiration by local horticulturists, and they will find Arthur Griffin, who has charge of the Galen Stone plants, ever ready to furnish any information required.

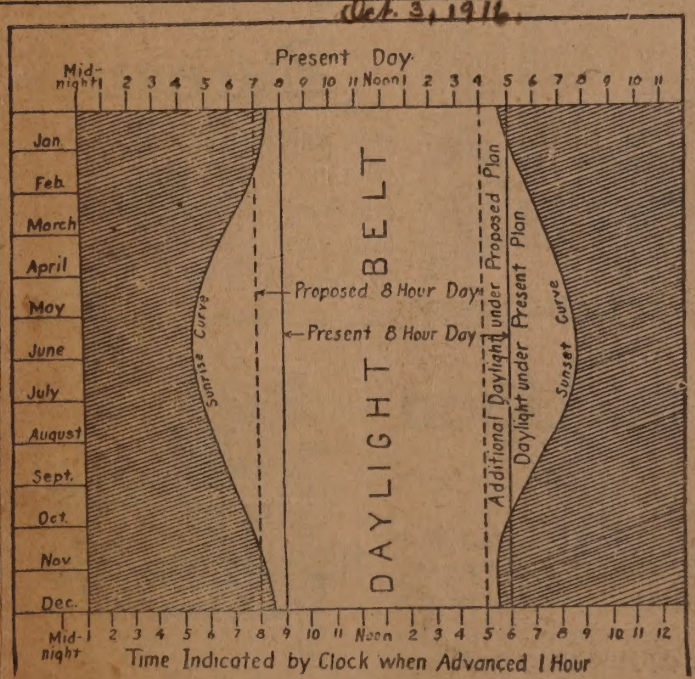
DIAGRAM SHOWING THE IDEA OF THE DAYLIGHT SAVING PLAN.

Oct. 3, 1916.



Do you think that it would be a good idea to move the clock forward an hour, so that all of your daily activities, your means, your work, your recreations, would take place one hour sooner each day than they do now? It is worth while to have some ideas on this subject, for there is good reason to believe that the federal government will do this within a year or two. If the government does not move the clock forward for the entire year, it may do it just for the summer months, and move it back again each winter.

The above diagram purports to show the advantage of this clock reform, or daylight saving plan. It shows the time of day that the sun rises and sets each day in the year, and consequently the amount of darkness and light in each twenty-four hours. The two solid vertical lines show how the common eight hour workday, from eight in the morning to five in the afternoon, falls in relation to light and darkness, and how the same workday would fall if the clock were put forward an hour.

It is readily seen from the chart, as one knows from actual experience if one thinks about it, that during most of the year most people waste a tremendous amount of daylight by sleeping until the sun is well up in the morning, with the result that they have little daylight to enjoy at the end of the workday. Pushing all of the day's activities forward an hour, which can be done most easily for all by advancing the clock, gives everyone a great deal more daylight at the end of the day, and so would conduce to health and enjoyment.

The fact that the plan is working successfully in most European countries shows that it is practicable, and according to reports from those countries it is proving very satisfactory to almost all classes of people.

ADVANCED WOMEN'S CLASS OF ST. JAMES CHURCH IS ENTHUSIASTIC YOUNG EPISCOPALIAN GROUP

Sept. 30, 1916.

WOMEN'S BIBLE CLASS OF ST. JAMES EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

In January, 1916, the advanced Women's class in the St. James Episcopal Church Sunday school, known as the Women's Bible class, began its work under the direction of William De Avelar, who asked Miss Ella C. Adams, the present teacher, to cooperate in this line of work for the up-building of the school. A class of 40 members was soon enrolled and there is at the present time an average attendance of about 30.

The work of the class is practically of the same nature as that of the Crusaders' class in this school, though they have no social club, as most of them have membership in the Girls' Friendly society, which is a national organization.

Both classes have started to work for the school in special ways. They had made plans to present an opera in June, but owing to the illness of the director, it was postponed and will probably be given in October. The proceeds are to be given toward furthering the charitable interests of both classes.

June 27, both classes had a final meeting to begin work in the school again in September.

OLD DARTMOUTH HISTORICAL SOCIETY HANGS BIG METAL SAIL.

Unnamed Woman Member Makes Handsome Present—Yard of Square Sail Is Suspended from Shaft of Seven-Foot Harpoon.

A handsome bronze sign for the Old Dartmouth Historical society building has been given to the society by a woman member, whose identity has not been divulged. The sign was designed by Harold S. Bowie and was cast in Boston. It was hung in place in front of the building this morning.

The sign measures about four feet from top to bottom, and is in the form of a square sail, bellying in the wind and tugging at its sheets. The yard is suspended from the shaft of a seven-foot harpoon, a double-edged weapon like that which the famous harpooner Queequeg was wont to shave. In large capitals across the sail are the words "Old Dartmouth Historical Society."

HILATHEA CLASS OF THE SOUTH BAPTIST CHURCH HAS GROWN STEADILY IN NUMBERS AND CHRISTIAN INFLUENCE

Dec. 2, 1916.

In the year 1907, the Philathea class of the South Baptist Sunday school started out to do things for the Sunday school and the church, with the inspiration of the Philathea organization, signifying "Lovers of God and His Work." Miss Sarah Brown, who is the teacher of the class, was its organizer, and from the first she has interested many of the young women to work along the lines laid down by the movement. There were but 24 members when they began work about 14 years ago, but there are now about 35 or 40 who meet Sunday after Sunday to study the International lessons, and who are also are giving of their time and talent, in bazaars, sales and entertainments, with which to raise funds for the church and Sunday school. Each Sunday, also, the class contributes a certain amount to this purpose. Business sessions are held once a quarter.

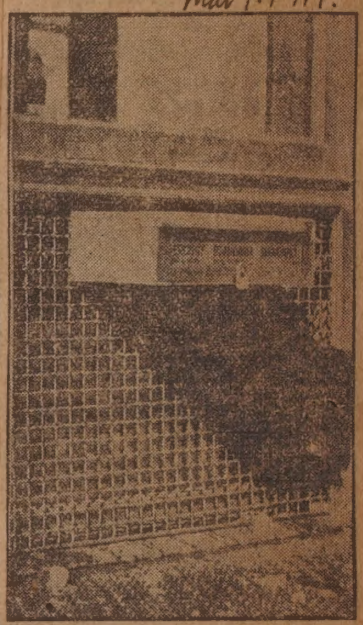
VENDING MACHINE TO SELL STANDARD DAILY AND SUNDAY

Mar 7-1917.



To enable the public to get copies of the daily and Sunday Standard whenever desired without being obliged to hunt for a newsboy, The Standard has secured four of the automatic newsboys, or newspaper vending machines. The first of these was installed on the Pleasant street side of The Standard building a few days ago, while the others will begin operations today. They are situated at the waiting station on William street, on the corner of Cove and South Water streets, and on the corner of Weld and Purchase streets.

The machine is the product of the American News Vending corporation of New York. It is intended to aid the public to get news quickly, but not to do away with the newsboy. As a supplement it has already proved satisfactory in many respects. The box will hold between 25 and 50 copies of The Standard. By insertion of two pennies on each weekday or three pennies on Sunday a copy of the paper will be expelled upon the working of a small lever. A nickel will work the machine, if you have no change, but no pennies will be returned to you.

Feb. 27, 1917.

ONE OF THE CITY'S NEW RUBBISH WAGONS.

The city's new rubbish carts have made their appearance on the streets. People are already fast becoming familiar with the high, slatted sides—in appearance, a wagon not unlike the wagons used in western New York and elsewhere to carry calves and pigs to the butcher, except that the sides are carried much higher. Henceforth the city's rubbish must be separated from its ashes,—and the high sides will efficiently prevent papers from blowing out to make unsightly the streets.

MISS MARY F. SALLES APPOINTED AS A SPECIAL COMMISSIONER.

Mar. 26, 1917

Miss Mary F. Salles, of 146 Rockland street, has just received from Governor McCall an appointment as special commissioner, and is the first Portuguese woman of this city to receive an appointment to that office.

Miss Salles is of a family who are among the earliest Portuguese settlers in New Bedford. She is employed as a general clerk and assistant in the office of Charles C. Connor, a local lawyer. Mr. Connor is also is librarian of the New Bedford Bar association law library at the superior court house on County street and Miss Salles has spent much time during the last two years in that library, assisting in rearranging it and preparing a detailed catalogue which has put her in touch with a multitude of legal subjects.

The office of special commissioner is the nearest approach to the offices of justice of the peace or notary public that it is possible for a woman to hold in the state, it having been created by the legislature to get around a decision of our supreme court that women could not be justices of the peace or notaries public, and has attached to it many powers common to both notaries public and justices of the peace.

Among these powers are those of taking acknowledgements, administering oaths, taking depositions and affidavits, appointing appraisers, summoning witnesses for courts or any other tribunal.

Miss Salles expects to serve Portuguese speaking people, especially the women.

Frank R. Parry, son of Arthur J. Parry of 167 Mill street, is among the New Bedford young men who have made noticeable advance in the navy. Mr. Parry is chief yeoman, stationed aboard the Virginia, now stationed at the Charlestown Navy Yard.

Frank R. Parry.

Parry attended the High school here and for some time after leaving the institution he was employed in printing houses of the city. Later he enlisted in the navy and was stationed at Newport for about a year. While there he studied until he was able to pass an examination which gave him the rating of chief yeoman.

For some time after leaving Newport, Parry was aboard the battleship Rhode Island. In 1913 the New Bedford boy was a member of the crew of the war ship when it was hurried to Mexican waters when international relations were strained.

NEW SHARP MILL HAS 50,000 SPINDLES RUNNING

Apr. 8, 1917.

With 50,000 spindles already running and more being started as fast as it arrives and is set up, the new Sharp mill is turning out a large volume of yarns. Less than half of the total equipment is running as yet, for when the big new mill is filled with machinery it will contain 120,000 spindles.

On account of the large amount of business which the machine shops have in hand, deliveries of equipment at the Sharp plant are unavoidably slow, but more is coming steadily, and a large amount is on the floors of the mill waiting to be set up. It is expected that the full equipment will be in operation by next January.

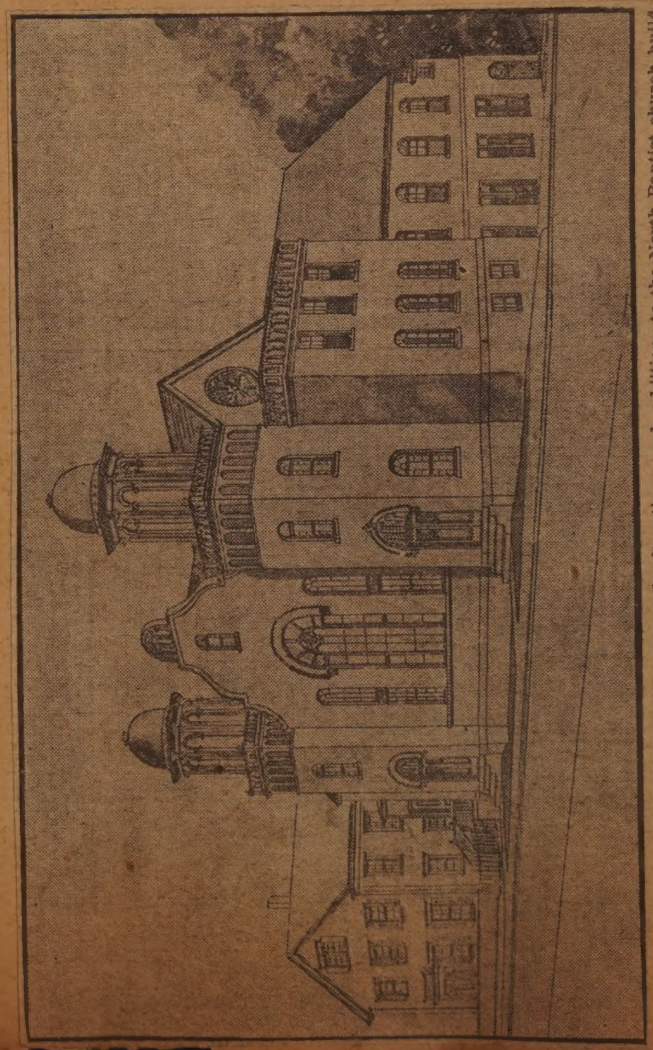
The new Sharp mill is one of the biggest mill structures in the city. Towering five stories in height it is an impressive plant when viewed from Dartmouth street. A feature of the plant is the location of the finishing department on the top floor, where the light from the saw-tooth roof makes working conditions the very best for the purpose of putting the yarn through its final process.

NEW BEDFORD'S HEROES IN WAR

Commander William P. Randall Fired Last Gun on Cumberland.

Apr-8, 1917.

COMMANDER WILLIAM P. RANDALL.



The above is a perspective of the proposed alterations and additions to the North Baptist church building, on the corner of County and Merrimac streets, as prepared by C. Hammond & Son, architects. It will be noted that the changes will include a large addition on the east side of the present structure and will close up the south end of the present building where the entrance is now. A new tower will be erected at the north end of the present building to counterbalance the present tower, and there will be two entrances, one in each tower. The members of the church will vote on the question of going ahead with the work next Wednesday night.

BRITISH VETERAN DEAD.

CAPTAIN GEORGE MOSS HAD INTERESTING CAREER.

Was First Captain of Company E, British Naval and Military Veterans' Association—Served as Guard for Queen Victoria. Apr. 12, 1917

Captain George Moss, who was prominent in the British Naval and Military Veterans' association in this city, died at his home, 435 South Front street, this morning. He was 72 years of age. He leaves a daughter, Mrs. Richard Satchell, 323 Summer street, from whose home the funeral services will be held, and a son, George Moss, Jr.

Captain George Moss.

At one time Captain Moss was a sentry outside the apartments of Queen Victoria at Windsor Castle. He enlisted in the Scots Guards in September, 1862, and secured his honorable discharge in 1866. During the intervening period he served as a sentry on all of the important guards in the city of London, including London Tower, Chelsea barracks and Windsor castle.

On April 16, 1907, he was installed as captain of company E of the British Veterans' association. In March, 1910, he was honored by being made a brevet major of the association. When the first installation of the officers of the B. V. A. Ladies' auxiliary was held in September, 1913, Captain Moss acted as the staff officer. He was a prominent member of the [illegible] club of this city.

Thomas W. Comstock, Jr., formerly of this city, and the son of Lieutenant Thomas W. Comstock, has written his father from Camp Funston, Leon Springs, Texas, telling of his enlistment in company 12, Officers' Reserve Corps, in training at that place. Mr. Comstock is a veteran of the Spanish war and was for nine years in the army before that service. He will take his examinations for a captaincy when trained.

Mr. Comstock is well known in New Bedford. His family is at El Paso, Texas. The lieutenant is justly proud that his son is "doing his bit" as the other did, when the call came in Civil days.

RTH CONGREGATIONAL C. E. SOCIETY GIVES PLAY.

ceeds to Be Used to Defray Expenses of Delegate to International Convention—As a French Fencing Master Frederick Brown Scores Hit

A three act farce, "Tommy's Wife," s presented last evening by the ristian Endeavor society of the rth Congregational church. Be- een the acts there were musical mbers, and an exhibition of Indian ub swinging by Miss Etta Horton. Afterwards an informal social was enjoyed.

The play, which has been successfully presented by the Wellesley college girls, deals with the adventures of a young artist. The part of the French fencing master, taken by Frederick Brown, was the most amusing.

A good sum of money was realized from the production. No admission was charged, but a free will offering was taken. The money is to be used to defray the expenses of sending a delegate to the international convention of the Christian Endeavor society to be held this summer in New York. Nature of New Assignment Not Made Public—Popular Army Officer Had a Host of Friends in New Bedford.

July 23 '17

Captain W. W. Rose, commandant at Fort Rodman leaves his post today for a new assignment, the nature of which has not been made public

Captain W. W. Rose.

Lieutenant Homer, the senior officer at the forth will take charge at least temporarily.

Captain Rose has been at Fort Rodman since October, 1915, and has made a host of friends in New Bedford. Before coming to New Bedford he had been at both Fort Oglethorpe and at Plattsburg as an instructor or staff officer in the training camps and after he came to this city he conducted a class each Wednesday evening at the armory for Plattsburg students who wanted to continue their studies and take examinations for the officers reserve corps. One result of those classes, to which Captain Rose gave freely of his time, is shown in the fact that more New Bedford men who went to Plattsburg this summer have been retained there inp roportion to the number, than the candidates from any other city in New England.

A TRAFFIC COP ARRAYED IN NEW WHITE STORM COAT

Mar. 21, 1917.

If it doesn't take two or three guesses on the next rainy day to tell whether New Bedford's traffic policemen an Arabian chief or soldier just out of the trenches, it will not be the fault of the man who manufactured their new uniforms. The new regalia has been handed out and it is designed to keep the officers dry and that's all they care about.

The outfits consist of a long white rubber coat, cut on military lines and a sort of helmet, also of rubber cloth, which fits snugly over the cap and all but conceals the policeman's face.

APPOINTED AS SUPERINTENDENT AT THE P. & R. PLANT

William A. Coe.

May 6, 1917.

William A. Coe, who assumed his new duties May 1 as superintendent of the Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron company's depot in this city, is the first local man to receive such an appointment. All of the former superintendents have been transferred from the New York or other offices. Mr. Coe has been in the employ of the company for the past 20 years. He has been employed as shipping clerk and as cashier previous to his new appointment. The company maintains here the largest coal storage plant in New England.

DR. E. T. TUCKER DIES

Apr. 20, 1917.

WELL KNOWN PHYSICIAN HAD BEEN ILL A YEAR.

Was Prominent in the Practice of His Profession in This City and Was a Leading Member of the Society of Friends.

Dr. Edward Tobey Tucker, 67, prominent for a great many years as a physician and as a leading member of the Society of Friends, died at his home, 1050 Pleasant street, at 6 o'clock this morning. He had been in poor health for the past year, having been confined to his bed the greater portion of the time and being obliged to retire from active practice of his profession.

He was born in this city September 29, 1848, the son of Charles Russell Tucker. His primary education was received in the public schools of this city and he prepared for college in Friends Academy. In 1871 he was graduated from Brown University and in 1874 received his degree from Harvard Medical school, returning here to practice.

From 1903 to 1905 he was physician to the overseers of the poor for outside work for the south half of the city. He was also physician in charge of the city almshouse from 1904 to December, 1915. From 1893 to 1898 he was a member of the school committee of this city. He was also a member of the Massachusetts Medical society and the New Bedford Society for Medical Improvement.

During his life Dr. Tucker took an active interest in charitable and philanthropic institutions of this city and elsewhere. He was trustee of a number of such funds and was a member of the board of directors of the charity organization of this city. He was also connected with the Union for Good Works. He was secretary of the Safe Deposit and Trust company for a long period. His interest also extended to the New England Historic and Genealogical society, the Old Colony Historical society of Taunton and the Old Dartmouth Historical society of New Bedford. He was a member of all these societies.

For a number of years Dr. Tucker was a member of the committee appointed by the Society of Friends to supervise the Friends' school in Providence, R. I., which is now known as the Moses Brown school. He held the office of clerk of the Monthly Meeting of the Society of Friends in this city since 1883. Likewise he had been clerk of the Sandwich Quarterly Meeting since 1887. As a director he was connected with the Y. M. C. A. for a number of years and served as its president at one time.

He leaves a wife, a son, Robert Earle Tucker; and two brothers, George Fox Tucker of Boston and Benjamin Tucker of Bethlehem, N. H.

GRAFTON B. FISH ON LINER HIT BY MINE.

Has Been on Steamer for About a Year, Having Been Transferred from the St. Louis—Has Had Considerable Sea Experience.

The news that the liner New York had arrived at Liverpool was comforting to Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Fish of 279 Palmer street, for their son, Grafton B. Fish, is third officer and navigator on that liner and they had been considerably worried when it was first reported that the liner had hit a mine. He has been on the New York a year, plying between New York and Liverpool.

Mr. Fish attended school in this city, breaking off his High school course to go to New York to pass the examination for bridge cadet at the American line headquarters. As a boy, he had spent much time along the water front and had had considerable experience on the water, particularly on the Vineyard boats. As a bridge cadet, he was on the Morro Castle, plying between New York and Cuba for about a dozen trips. He then returned to the High school and graduated, afterwards spending one year as assistant instructor at the Industrial school and one year at the evening classes at the High school. He went to Cushing academy to take the senior work in preparation for the University of New York. His last two years at college was spent in lecturing and he went to sea every summer to raise money to complete his course. Before graduating, however, he was called to the service and after going a few trips on the St. Louis, was transferred to the New York-Buenos Ayres course and then to the New York.

Our Grandfathers and Grandmothers Looked Pleasant for Him When They Were Young—Made One of First Photographs On Paper.

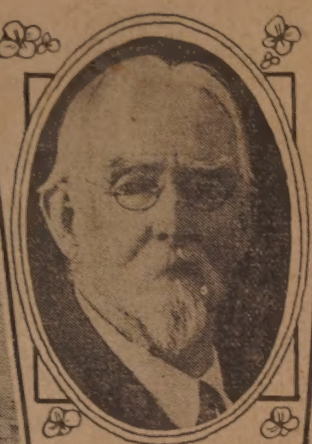
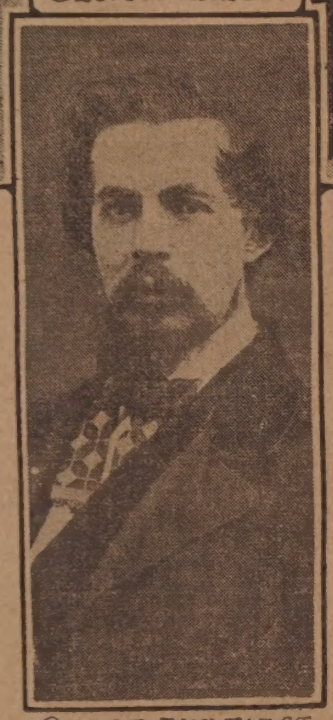
DAGUERROTYPE 1854



GEO. F. PARLOW

AMBROTYPE 1855



ONE OF THE FIRST PHOTOS EVER MADE ON PAPER- 1858

Years and years ago, when whaling was not fast becoming an adventurous background for romance, there was on Purchase street, number 5, a portrait studio, kept by an ingenious photographer by the name of George F. Parlow.

Twenty-eight years after Mr. Parlow left New Bedford for Florida orange groves, his name had become a tradition, and strangers in the city had become old residents and heard of him as "the photographer" of other days, and seen his portraits in old albums, and doubtless remarked their wonderful clearness, their unfaded brightness after the passing of so many years. "Parlow's Studio" was part and parcel with the old days, gone forever, when business had not moved so far westward, and when names now historical were familiar in The Standard every evening. Now, in his old age, George F. Parlow, as The Sunday Standard told its readers a few weeks ago, has returned to this city, and is busy renewing old acquaintances and fast making new ones.

With Mr. Parlow back in town, his name is removed out of the realm of the historical and traditional into the realm of the actual. It is interesting, therefore, to turn back retrospectively to his career as a photographer,—a career which, it is interesting to note, covers the entire progress of photography from primitive daguerrotype and ambrotype to the modern photograph.

Mr. Parlow began to study photography as early as 1854, and splendid specimens of his early work in ambrotype and daguerrotype (when a "likeness" was a luxury of the rich and cost $5 a portrait) are to be seen in his large collections. At first he was with E. S. Dunshee at 30 Purchase street, but shortly went to Lowell to start a man in ambrotyping. In 1862, he opened his studio at 5 Purchase street,—the very place later occupied by Reed. In 1862, New Bedford was a city of comparatively small population, and he knew everybody and everybody knew him. The greatest of our whaling captains were his friends; the most distinguished citizens of the town sat to him and obeyed his instructions to "look pleasant, please." Winsome Quaker ladies; stern brown business men; society folk, and men of affairs flocked to Parlow's to have their portraits taken.

He photographed whole families, from grandfathers and grandmothers, to grandchildren and great grandchildren—in groups or singly, and in every possible position against the handsomest of backgrounds.

Among the famous folks who frequented his studio were: George Howland, Jr., once mayor of the city; William J. Rotch; Jonathan Bourne; David R. Green, forty years ago one of the richest men in New Bedford; Abraham Barker; Alexander Seabury; Charles Taber, Mr Heath, the minister; William H. Allen, Edmund Rodman, Rachel Howland—once called the "handsomest woman in the county," and a Friend whom everybody loved; Thomas Bennett, superintendent then of the Wamsutta mills; Benjamin Lindsey, who established The Mercury; Benjamin F. Howland, a coal dealer; Josiah Holmes; John H. Perry, at one time mayor; Dr. Edward R. Sisson, who is living today, and John A. Hawes, another yachtsman and the first president of the New Bedford Yacht club.

The time came when the demand for his work was so great that he broke down physically and found relief in a farm in East Freetown, where he raised tons of grapes and schools of brook trout. For fourteen years, he ran this farm in conjuction with his work in New Bedford. Then he sold out and went south, where he for years was a successful photographer, and in 1898, in Tampa, made famous pictures of Uncle Sam's army officers and men that went all over the nation. He retired from active business in 1902.

RECEIVES PATENT ON THE STANDARD BASEBALL BOARD.

Jan. 19, 1917.

William G. Ashley.

The patent office at Washington has notified William G. Ashley, the electrician of The Standard office, that the patent covering the game exhibition device which includes the baseball and football score boards and other boards operated by a magnet to show the process of the game, has been allowed, and the certificates will be forwarded later. The patent has been pending for the past year and a half, since Mr. Ashley invented the baseball board which attracted large crowds to The Standard office in world series times. After the baseball board was declared a huge success Mr. Ashley experimented with a football gridiron and scored again. Another sport which was particularly mentioned when the patent was sought was the reproduction of a horse race. The board is patented under the name of The Standard Baseball Player.

Was Stricken with Heart Attack in April While at Work on Statue of Alexander Hamilton—A Few Days Ago His Condition Became Serious—Was 49 Years of Age.

Boston, May 18.—Bela L. Pratt, a sculptor, whose work had attracted national interest, died at his home here today. He was stricken with a heart attack in April while at work on a statue of Alexander Hamilton to be set up in a park at Chicago, and his physician advised a long rest in the hope that he might regain his health. A few days ago, however, his condition became serious. Mr. Pratt was 49 years of age.

Among the works for which Mr. Pratt was noted were the Nurses' Memorial at the Boston State House; the Hawthorne monument for the Salem common, the figures of Art and Science in front of the Boston Public Library, the statue of Edward Everett Hale, Copley square; "The Dance," "The Young Mother" at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, and "The Whaleman," the gift of W. W. Crapo to the city of New Bedford, which stands on Library square.

NEW BEDFORD folk have launched the last of the whalers.

A full-rigged vessel, sparred [illegible] equipped with harpoons and lances and seven whale-boats, has been christened and sent out to sea, honored by a distinguished gathering of New Englanders. She is the barque Lagoda, and the sea she will sail is the wooden floor of the Jonathan Bourne Whaling Museum in New Bedford, Mass. The vessel is a half-sized model of the famous old whaler Lagoda. The new Lagoda is the largest model of a vessel ever constructed under a roof. She is housed in the only whaling museum in the world.

Down to the minutest details the new Lagoda is an exact copy of the old whaler that made perilously long voyages and braved the icebergs of the Antarctic and the typhoons of the Indian Ocean to bring whalebone and oil back to New England. From her flying jibboom to her spanker boom, the new Lagoda measures 89 feet, and 59 feet from figurehead to stern. The bowsprit measures 15½ feet and the fore and main yards 28 feet.

"Launched upon the shoreless seas of the future," the good barque Lagoda will go on forever—the ship that will never sail, perpetuating New Bedford's great whaling industry and honoring one of its old leaders, Jonathan Bourne.

The Jonathan Bourne Whaling Museum, which was dedicated at the time of the "launching" of the Lagoda, is the gift of Miss Emily Howland Bourne, [illegible] of the great whaling merchant. The museum adjoins New Bedford's Old Dartmouth Historical Society. Both buildings, now connected, constitute a unique memorial—the greatest tribute to what was formerly New Bedford's greatest industry—and is still greatest in tradition and lore.

Both museums are nestled away on "Johnny Cake Hill," opposite the Seaman's Bethel and Mariner's Home, a structure built in the eighteenth century. This region has been immortalized in that famous epic of the whaling industry, Herman Melville's "Moby Dick, or The White Whale." It is a region saturated with the charm and the beauty of the sea.

Imprisoned Romance

Romance in the new Lagoda?

Surging seas of romance—enough to float her in the red-brick museum where she was built and where she is moored forever—enough to engulf the driest landlubber from Kansas. It is the romance of the seven seas, of thrilling voyages and dauntless adventure, the romance of an industry world-wide, heroic, picturesque—and now almost dead. Snug and safe in her sheltered port, breasting the waves that can never toss or shake her, rising and falling only with the swell and sweep of legend and reminiscence, the new Lagoda is still the ship of romance. There is a captivating story of the seas in her towering masts, in her spars slung aloft, in her shipshape canvases, in her care-free decks, and in her harpoons and lances.

The Jonathan Bourne Whaling Museum was built by the donor and presented by her to the Old Dartmouth Historical Society to hold whaling relics and the half-sized model of the old Lagoda. The museum itself cost about $50,000, and the model is estimated to have cost fully $25,000 more. Henry Vaughan of Boston was the architect and William Crane of Cambridge the builder.

Immediately after the museum was completed in the middle of December, 1915, work was begun on the model of the bark Lagoda. Edward B. Hammon drew up the plans and the actual construction was done by Frank B. Sistare, aided by William H. Crook, a master shipbuilder, who had worked on the original Lagoda.

Henry Vaughan, the Boston architect, modelled the museum after the historic custom house at Salem, Mass., where Nathaniel Hawthorne worked. The result is a massive structure in the Georgian style, built of red Colonial brick, with limestone trimming and white woodwork. From the ground to the tip of her whaleship weathervane the building measures ninety-six feet. It is 118 feet long and fifty-seven wide. A belfry, from which the sweep of New Bedford Harbor may be seen, crowns the roof.

Seaworthy Though Sealess

Within the museum is a large main hall in which stands the model of the Lagoda. The Lagoda impresses you as anything but artificial. Her rigging is strikingly real. It smacks of the ocean, of gales and storms, of tip-top watermanship and swift, severe contests with stubborn monsters of the sea. The old tar that can't feel the roar of the waves when he surveys the stern, the bow, and the decks of the new Lagoda, that can't feel the thrill of being before the mast again—well, such a mariner isn't a real sea-lover.

When the Lagoda was "launched" at the Jonathan Bourne Whaling Museum on Nov. 23, there was some of the pomp that marks a battleship christening. But it was different. It looked not to the future, but to the past. It looked, not to record-shattering speed and efficiency, but to beauty and tradition and revered associations.

King of the Whalers

Jonathan Bourne was the dean of that picturesque school of whaling-merchants that combined the intrepid qualities of the man before the mast with the financial prudence of the capitalist, and, incidentally, marked the beginning of so many New England fortunes.

A history of the whaling industry in the United States is almost tantamount to a history of New Bedford. In 1856, in the customs district of New Bedford, there were registered 418 vessels employed in whaling, manned by nearly 15,000 sailors. The business was full of perils and disappointments, but on the whole it was lucrative. Jonathan Bourne was the leader of the whaling merchants. "It was their intelligence, sagacity, efficiency, and foresightedness," said William W. Crapo, in presenting the Whaling Museum for Miss Bourne, "that made the New Bedford that was, and laid the foundation for the New Bedford that is." Bourne's importations of oil and bone into the port of New Bedford were greater than those of any other person or firm. At one time he had fourteen vessels in his service—the greatest fleet of its kind.

"Among Bourne's early ventures," says Mr. Crapo, "was the Lagoda. Ships have a certain personality. Their names appear on the pages of the ledger in the counting-room of the owner. An account is opened in the name of the ship, just as with an individual, and the ship is charged with its first cost and all expenditures in connection with the vessel and her employment, whether made at the home port or abroad, and the ship is credited with the proceeds of the inward voyages.

"Mr. Bourne had larger vessels, of greater tonnage, more modern in construction and equipment, but the one which he prized above all others was the Lagoda.

His Favorite Ship

"In a conversation one day he told me the story of his favorite. He was in a reminiscent mood and it was after he had withdrawn the vessel from his further service on account of age. Under his control and direction the Lagoda had sailed the seas for forty-four years, during which period it had made twelve voyages, the shortest of two years, lacking a few days, and the longest of four years and eleven months. In the final summing up of these voyages from accounts accurately kept and compiled carefully and correctly, there appeared a balance of receipts over expenditures that showed a net profit which had been paid and distributed to the owners, amounting to $852,000.

"It has been the wish of the Old Dartmouth Historical Society to have a representation or exhibit typical of a whaleship, not a painting or a picture, but a model in wood and metal and other materials, showing the complete vessel and its appurtenances, the hull, masts, spars, rigging, sails, the boats hanging on the davits, the try-works on the deck, the crow's nest at the mast-head for the look-out, and the other implements used in its employment. This wish has been gratified. You have before you a facsimile, half-size, exact in all details and dimensions, of the Lagoda as ready to start out on the ocean voyage."

Looking upon the model of the Lagoda, you don't have to muster much imagination to picture a clear-eyed, stout-hearted seaman standing in the bow of the vessel, thrusting a harpoon into a whale. You see the whale dodge and squirm and plunge. But it is caught and pinioned. The seamen and the whale battle furiously. The whale must be killed or the vessel is sunk. . . . Lances and lines fly. . . . Then the whale-boat sails on triumphantly, ready for new conquest. . . .

Whaling is dead.

Long live the Lagoda!

Mr. and Mrs. Cartwright have another son in the merchant marine.

FRANK PIERACCINI IS HOME AGAIN AFTER THRILLING EXPERIENCE

Frank Pieraccini.

July 3, 1917

Frank Pieraccini, the father of Inspector Raphael Pieraccini, returned to New Bedford today, after being absent from home since before the war. He came back with a thrilling story at sea,—for he sailed from an Italian port on steamer Verdi which had the exciting battle with a submarine. And he saw the aeroplane which was escorting their vessel from the Italian coast, engage the submarine and drop the bomb by which it is supposed the U-boat was sunk.

Frank Pieraccini is an American citizen. He is well known in New Bedford, and for years had a fruit stand at William and Purchase streets. While in Italy, war conditions obliged him to send to Washington for his passports. He has three sons here—John, Frank Jr. and Raphael.

On the way over, the steamer went without lights. It cleared from the Italian coast on June 17 and arrived in an American port yesterday. Three hours after it sailed, it began to give battle with its guns with the U-boat. The conflict ended when the aeroplane, soaring over the undersea terror, dropped the bomb.

Mr. Pieraccini is glad to be home again and will remain in New Bedford with his sons.

RAYMOND F. BABCOCK WRITES OF SAFE ARRIVAL IN FRANCE.

Young Man Formerly Associated with Morse Twist Drill Enlisted in April and Is Now Second Class Machinist's Mate. July 3, 1917

Word has been received from Raymond F. Babcock, son of Dr. and Mrs. E. F. Babcock, of Fairhaven, who is now second class machinist's mate on a warship, that the ship has arrived safely in France. Mr. Babcock tells nothing of the location of the ship and it can only be said that it is "somewhere in France."

The young man enlisted early in April, passing an almost perfect examination and having his name placed on the honor list at Washington. He was at one time employed at the Morse Twist Drill in this city and later in making torpedoes in the New port and Washington navy yards. Be cause of his excellent knowledge o torpedoes he has been promised rap promotion in his new line of work.

H. A. Jahn, well known in this city for a number of years as a florist of exceptional ability in raising rare flowers, died last evening at his residence on Brock avenue, aged 59 years. Mr. Jahn had been ill for some time. In 1906 Mr. Jahn perfected a white carnation, which marked an epoch in the culture and development of carnations, or pinks, as they are popularly known. At that time Mr. Jahn was offered $8000 for his secret and all his slips and plants, but it was refused. The carnation was four inches in diameter. Mr. Jahn leaves a widow.

He was born in Esslingen, Wurtemburg, Germany, in 1858, and educated in Germany and France as a florist, making a specialty of hybridizing carnations and roses. For many years he was known as an authority upon this subject, and was the recipient of many cups and medals for excellence of new varieties he had developed, (including the Henry Clews Cup for Carnations, which was awarded him at New York for superiority three consecutive years).

He was a member of the American Carnation society, the New Bedford Horticultural society, Vesta lodge of Odd Fellows and other organizations.

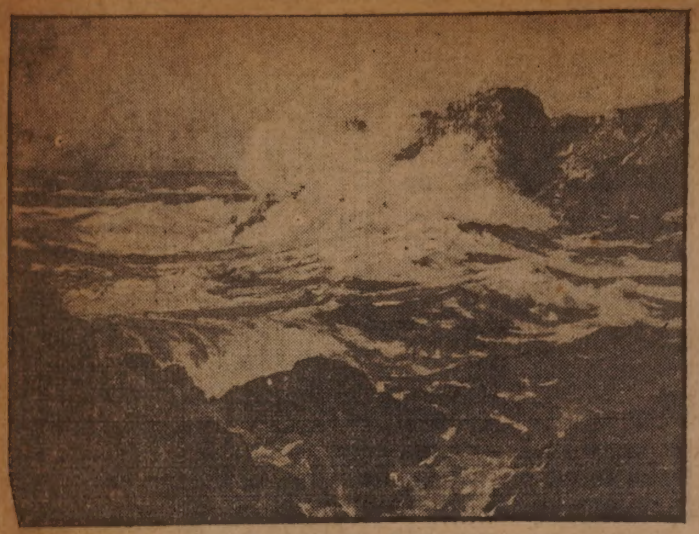
MARINES BY PAUL DOUGHERTY SHOWN



Two marines by Paul Dougherty, the celebrated American painter, are still on exhibition with other notable work in the Swain Galleries, on County street. This large collection—one of the finest ever shown in the city—will be open to the public for the last time today. It is hoped by many are-lovers that some of these paintings may be purchased here, that they may remain in the city.

EXPLAINS USE OF CARS IN PUBLIC SAFETY SERVICE

Apr. 9, 1917.

(Upper photograph shows pennant for cars only while officially on public safety service; lower photograph shows medallion used by the public safety committee to designate enrolled cars.)

Metal medallions, inscribed "Massachusetts—Enrolled for Service," are to be distributed by the public safety committee to all automobile owners who have offered their cars to the committee to be used in the case of emergency. The medallion is to be circular in shape, will have the seal of the commonwealth in the center and will be attached to the radiator of the automobile. They are now being made and will be distributed later on.

Automobiles doing military duty will be adorned with pennants bearing the words "Committee on Public Safety" and also bearing the seal of the commonwealth. Just as soon as the car goes into this service, it is designated by a pennant, which will be removed when that duty is completed. A few have been placed on Boston cars. It is unlikely that New Bedford cars will receive such designation because the autos here may be used for civic and not military service.

SEVEN YEAR OLD BOY HAS VEGETABLE ROUTE

Wilbur Wright, Seven Years Old, Works In His Father's Backyard Garden and Is Truck Merchant for Neighbors.

Aug. 26, 191

Seven-year-old Wilbur Wright, who lives at 27 Jenny Lind street, has been an active little farmer this past summer. Wilbur's father, J. Arnold Wright, planted a large lot of land to the rear and side of his house with potatoes, corn, tomatoes, cucumbers, beans and peanuts. The little boy became interested in the garden right away and he has done a very large share for a small lad in keeping it free from weeds and generally assisting his father. The peanuts are Wilbur's particular interest because he knows that growing peanuts in the north is rare and just now his prom ise to come along nicely.

The crops from the Wright garde have somewhat exceeded the denia of the family table, so Wilbur co ceived the idea of selling some of t surplus to neighbors. He found h own customers, four or five steady a few occasional housewives nea and each morning he brings th fresh vegetables. Accordingly his tle bank account has begun to sw and he will be many dollars rich this fall.

HERE'S AN EASY WAY TO TEST THE SPEEDOMETER ON YOUR AUTO

Aug. 26, 1

Copper Plate in Sidewalk at Corner of William and Pleasant Streets, Ma ing Start of Official Mile.

Suppose, Mr. Automobile Owner, you thought that your speedometer was not recording the miles correctly, how would you test it to find whether your suspicions were right or wrong? Whether or not your speedometer is onto its job is not merely a matter of curiosity to you. If it is not counting up the miles as fast as it ought to, it might be concealing a great waste of gasoline or oil, and on auto tours in which you use a guide book it might be very misleading.

The chances are that very few automobile drivers in this city know

Pleasant street. It is merely question of going to the corner Pleasant and William streets, n how the speedometer reads the car is opposite the official sta plate in the curbing on the east si of the street and then running th car up Pleasant street to the offici finish plate between Austin and We streets.

These plates, of copper, are o a few inches square, and they set into the stone curbing so they do not attract much atte But they were put there by th department of weights and m several years ag for the pu testing tax supp
